The weight of the HeBlad game tables is high. Solidity, robustness and resistance to vandalism ensure that the tables last for years and retain their beautiful appearance. However, this can mean that the heavy ping-pong tables, footvolley tables or football tables sink on certain surfaces. How do you prevent such a heavy product from sinking? By placing a base set under the table legs of the tables, more surface area is created and thus the weight of the table is distributed more nicely.

Only available to order in combination with a concrete table.

Specifications base set anthracite concrete
This base set is made of anthracite concrete through and through, exactly the same colour anthracite concrete as our game tables are made of. The dimensions of a base piece are 122.5 x 20 x 6.5 cm. As a result, the base protrudes 5 cm all around beyond the original table leg. In what colour are the base sets available? Because we always work with robust concrete and we colour the concrete in its entirety, you can choose between anthracite concrete and natural concrete. For the game tables in the colour natural concrete, you order the set of concrete base pieces for extra load-bearing capacity. With the same properties and specifications, but in a different colour. The right base set for every table.

Base set or base plate
A base set is an inconspicuous aid to provide stability to the gaming table. What if the surface is too soft or uneven? Then play it safe and place the table on a base plate. We have developed a suitable base plate specifically for all gaming tables. This plate can be placed in the surface, so that there are no annoying raised edges, mowing the lawn around the table is no problem and the table is level.

Contact HeBlad about the base set
When do you choose a base set and when is a base plate recommended? Or can the gaming table be placed directly on the surface? We understand that in some cases it is difficult to determine what the best option is. Therefore, if in doubt, always contact us. We are happy to help you with the right advice and explain all the options to you.
